

Talking It Out

Getting to Agreement

People experience conflict every day, from the insignificant to the critical. How many times might you think:
What do we do with our conflicts?
How do I find solutions that truly put concerns and issues to rest?
Can I find common ground and make genuine peace with my difficult person?

TALKING IT OUT: GETTING TO AGREEMENT is a dynamic exhibit portraying the success stories of seven individuals and communities in Colorado. The exhibit demonstrates that you CAN deal with conflicts constructively! The panels describe different conflicts and effective conflict resolution strategies.

The exhibit was created to inspire visitors to talk about their differences and nonviolently manage their conflicts. Each story illustrates how people, who had strong disagreements, were able to work through their concerns to build stronger relationships in schools, workplaces, families and neighborhoods. TALKING IT OUT: GETTING TO AGREEMENT actively celebrates Coloradans solving serious conflicts together.

TALKING IT OUT: GETTING TO AGREEMENT is offered by Conflict Resolution Month in Colorado and is available at no cost to community venues with public traffic and space for these inspirational stories. Each of the 16 panels (7.5' high by 3' wide) is freestanding, versatile, and easily transported. We will deliver the exhibit and set it up at your convenience. Exhibit panels can be viewed at: <http://conflictresolutionmonth.org/book-our-photo-exhibit/>.
